

Published June 2008

Maj Gen Henry Marion Durand

THE FIRST AFGHAN WAR And Its Causes

Size: 5.5x8.5 inches • Printed Pages: 488 • Hardbound

ISBN: 978-098153781-8

Price: India Rs 795 • International USD 27
(inclusive of international shipping)

This book will go on sale in June 30, 2008. You may register your order through an email to lancer@lancerpublishers.com

You will receive an email alert in June 2008, on launch of this book, inviting you to order your copy at our online military bookshop at www.lancerpublishers.com

The First Afghan War written by Major General Sir Henry Marion Durand, K.C.S.I., C.B contains detailed account of the First Afghan campaign of Great Britain. General Durand was commissioned in Corps of Bengal Engineers after passing out of East India Company College, Addiscombe on June 7, 1828. General Durand saw the entire campaign closely & accompanied Sir Willoughby Cotton's division to Quetta & then he was with Sir John Keane's force in the advance to Candhar. From Candhar, after bearing part of the Sale's expedition to Girishk, he marched with main body upon Cabul where he commanded the explosion party that was tasked to destroy the Cabul Gate.

Buy your copy online at Online Military Bookshop
www.lancerpublishers.com

Book explains number of such historic events & throws light on the way of maintaining supply lines at that time, how British Indian army ran on half/quarter rations and events & wrong decisions that led to complete annihilation of the Elphinston's Army, only example of its kind in the history of the British Army. In short, this book has explained the entire campaign in such a way that takes the reader back in history & visualises the entire campaign.

LANCER
PUBLISHERS